Welcome

On behalf of all the organisers of Agoonoree 2018, the Agoonoram team welcomes all Scouts, Guides and Guests to camp. We hope all are ready for an action packed camp with loads of activities and fun for everyone. This morning BP Park was swarmed with all ages finding their way to their troops which includes the brand new Pink Troop. The first day of camp was exciting with all troops being set up very fast bringing camp to a flying start. The enthusiasm in the morning shows that this camp will be one to remember. We hope that the guests are settling into camp well and that Agoonoree can provide a 2nd home for the next 6 days. Thankyou to all the leaders and admin team for helping make this event a huge success. We have no doubt that everyone on camp will have the time of their life for this week and will make memories to take back home to share with friends and family.

CAMP REGULATIONS

To avoid any unfortunate occurrences (fancy words, yeah!), please abide by the following camp regulations (more fancy words!!!!)

- Wear hats, scarfs and name tags at all time
- Always wear enclosed shoes
- Wear sunscreen during the day
- Keep hydrated (Always have a water bottle)
- Be kind to the admin team
- Watch the bad language
- Never miss an opportunity for food
- FUN! (not optional)
- Rubbish belongs in the bin and not on the ground.
- Be friendly to everyone

DAILY JOKE

What's the difference between a jet engine and a flight attendant?

At the end of the flight, the jet engine stops whining

If anyone has jokes or stories come see us the Agoonoram desk next to the merchandise shop

Troop Report—VC

Agoonoree life started early for the members of Venturer Central with everyone arriving bright and early at 8am to setup camp. This was not an activity without mishaps however. The Venturers, upon completing the setup of their tents were notified that all of their tents were pitched incorrectly, in the wrong spots. So, much to the joy of the Venturers, they had to move and re-pitch every single tent. Sadly the struggle for the Venturers continued when their ridge pole broke during setup. Luckily, with some scouting skills (and some duct-tape) they were able to fix it right up. Despite the issues experienced during setup all the Venturers are in good spirits and ready for a great camp.
